The Story of Us

By Mitali Perkins · Illustrated by Kevin Howdeshell and Kristen Howdeshell

Air. Water. Earth. Fire. Critically acclaimed author Mitali Perkins paints a sweeping picture of the biblical redemption story in this luminous, lyrical picture book. At the beginning of all things, Creator uses the four elements to make humans. When creation falls into chaos—resulting in greed, war, and devastation—Redeemer comes to fix the mess, using air, water, earth, and fire to rebuild what has been broken. Ultimately, at the end of all things, Restorer arrives, bringing lasting peace to all creation and healing to the earth. Through expansive, lyrical text from Mitali Perkins and stunning illustrations by Kevin and Kristen Howdeshell, this thought-provoking work of art invites readers to ponder their own relationship to nature and the Divine.

From critically acclaimed author Mitali Perkins comes a sweeping, poetic take on the biblical redemption story.

Mitali Perkins is an award-winning author of novels and picture books for young readers, including You Bring the Distant Near; Forward Me Back to You; Rickshaw Girl; and Bamboo People, among others. Her books have been nominated for the National Book Award, have won the South Asia Book Award, and have been listed as Best Book of the Year by Publishers Weekly, Kirkus, and School Library Journal. Born in Kolkata, India, Perkins has lived in India, Ghana, Cameroon, Great Britain, Mexico, Bangladesh, Thailand, and the United States (Massachusetts, New York, and California). Perkins's work is known for strong characters who cross all kinds of borders, seek community, and promote justice. She and her husband have two sons and live in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Kevin Howdeshell is one half of The Brave Union, a small illustration studio in Kansas City, Missouri. After studying animation at the Kansas City Art Institute, Kevin partnered with his now wife, Kristen, to illustrate various projects, from packaging, poster design, and editorial illustration, to dozens of children's books.

Kristen Howdeshell is an illustrator and one half of The Brave Union, based out of Kansas City, Missouri. She and her husband, Kevin, have collaborated since 2008, creating art for a variety of projects including packaging, movie posters, album artwork, and dozens of children's books.

From celebrated author Matt Forrest Esenwine comes a humorous and heartfelt look at what it means to be human, how to be a good one, and the way love connects us all as one big, messy human family.

A Beginner's Guide to Being Human

By Matt Forrest Esenwine · Illustrated by André Ceolin

Being a human is a lot of work! Thankfully, humans experience many of the same feelings, situations, and challenges, so we don't have to figure it all out on our own—we can help each other navigate the ups and downs. Full of humor and heart, this engaging guide inspires kids to be humans who are kind, empathetic, and thoughtful. No matter what our day brings, we can choose to practice self-control, compassion, and forgiveness. Don't worry, young human, it's okay to make some mistakes along the way—just remember that it's love that keeps us all afloat at the end of the day.

First, that group of humans who hang around you all the time is known as family—and no matter what they look like, sound like, or smell like, they're the people who care about you most.*

* Pro Tip: You don't even need to be related to be family!

Families love each other, disappoint each other, support each other, and get angry with each other, over and over—sometimes all in the same day. Weird, right?

And yet that whole "caring about you" part never stops.

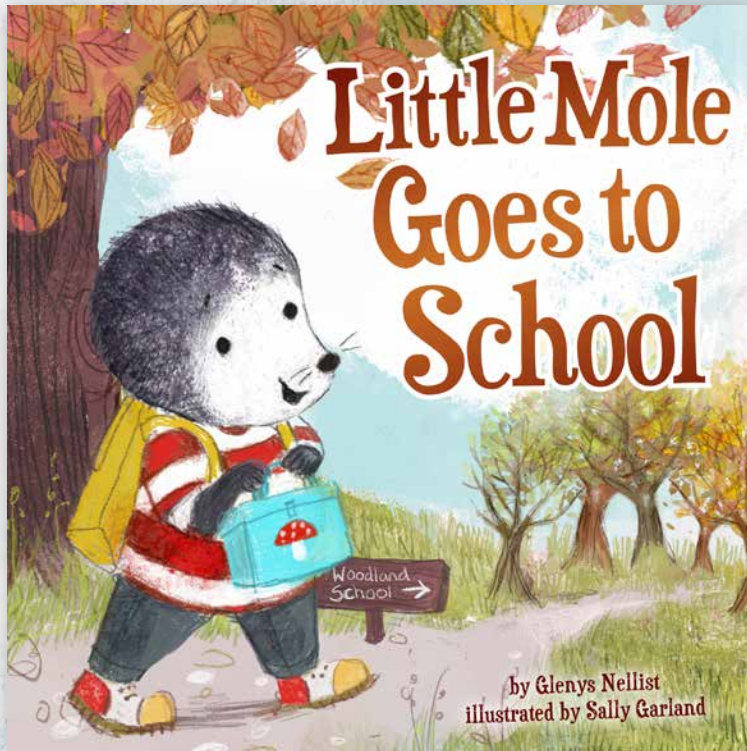

Matt Forrest Esenwine is an author and poet from Warner, New Hampshire. His debut picture book, Flashlight Night (Boyd's Mills Press, 2017), was selected by the New York Public Library as one of the Best Books for Kids of 2017. His picture book Once Upon Another Time (Beaming Books, 2021), co-authored with Charles Ghigna, was deemed "a necessary addition to picture book collections" by ALA's Booklist. His poetry can be found in numerous anthologies including The National Geographic Book of Nature Poetry (National Geographic Children's Books, 2015) and Construction People (Wordsong, 2020).

André Ceolin studied at the School of Visual Arts in New York City. He has illustrated over twenty books for children. André lives in Brazil with his family.

Little Mole is back—this time, with a charming, relatable tale about learning to be confident in yourself even when you are nervous.

Little Mole Goes to School

By Glenys Nellist · Illustrated by Sally Garland

It's Little Mole's first day of school, and he's nervous. What if he is the last to know his alphabet? What if he's not good at anything? With a good bit of anxiety, Little Mole heads to class and begins to compare himself to his peers. How will he ever measure up? But soon a crisis on the playground reveals that he has everything he needs in his own two paws to save the day. In this third installment of the Little Mole series, author Glenys Nellist and illustrator Sally Garland spin another endearing tale of the beloved Little Mole, his encouraging mama, and his forest friends. Children will relate to Little Mole's feelings of self-doubt, will cheer him on when he discovers his unique gifts and talents, and will be inspired to confront their own insecurities and celebrate what they have to offer, too.

"Oh, Little Mole," said Mama kindly, "lots of your friends won't know their alphabet. That's why everyone goes to school—to learn. And it will help a little if you sit near the front. I know you'll do your best, like you always do!"

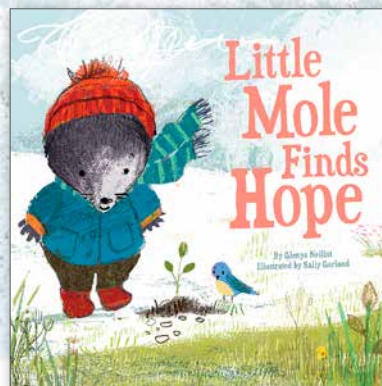

At the school gate, Mama gave Little Mole a big hug and blew him a kiss goodbye as he slowly shuffled inside.

The true story of a beloved banyan tree, the community that fought to save it after Hurricane Maria, and the strength of the people of Puerto Rico, who continue to rebuild to this day.

The Tree of Hope: The Miraculous Rescue of Puerto Rico's Beloved Banyan

By Anna Orenstein-Cardona · Illustrated by Juan Manuel Moreno

On the tropical island of Puerto Rico, there was an ancient banyan tree. His enormous twisted trunk rose up beside the San Juan Gate. Long roots hung from his wide-spreading branches, and his emerald, leafy crown greeted all who passed by. This beloved tree stood on the shore of the island for over a hundred years—until the fateful time when the biggest hurricane in Puerto Rico's history slammed into the island, devastating communities and uprooting that very tree.

This lushly illustrated and evocatively written picture book tells the story of the majestic jagüey blanco, one of the most beloved trees in the city of Old San Juan. Puerto Rican author Anna Orenstein-Cardona weaves an epic tale based on the true story of this bearded watchdog of the island, how the tree was impacted by Hurricane Maria, and how a group of people rallied together to save it. With gorgeous illustrations by Juan Manuel Moreno, this picture book serves as an account of the devastating impact of Hurricane Maria and the strength of the people who continue to rebuild to this day.

The inspiring story of Rosalind Franklin, an unsung hero in molecular science who made big contributions to science that changed the world.

Rosalind Looked Closer: An Unsung Hero of Molecular Science

By Lisa Gerin · Illustrated by Chiara Fedele

As a Jewish girl in England, Rosalind Franklin grew up against the backdrop of World War II. Fascinated with the natural world, as well as the invisible world that she could only see through her microscope, Rosalind developed a passion for science during a time when few women were recognized for their contributions to the field.

Despite her father's discouragement, Rosalind studied chemistry at Cambridge University and went on to study the molecular structure of carbons and DNA molecules. As a scientist, she learned a new technique called X-ray diffraction to take photos of molecular structures. With this technique she captured an image of DNA that was unlike any other image that had been seen before. She saw an image of a helix made up of repeating strands of DNA. It was mesmerizing. This was what the DNA double helix looked like up close—one of the most important findings of the twentieth century.

An unsung hero of molecular science, Rosalind persisted even when men took credit for her work, going on to research the molecular shape of viruses. Rosalind Looked Closer is sure to inspire educators and parents interested in encouraging curiosity and a passion for STEM in girls and boys.

Other scientists (mostly men) were working on the same thing in Europe and America. Everyone was trying to solve the puzzle of what DNA actually looked like.

After two years, Rosalind got the perfect picture of DNA. It was labelled Photo 51, the 51st picture she had taken. Rosalind took a closer look at the photo. She saw an image of two ribbons wrapping around each other. In between the two sides of the ribbons were rungs, like steps on a ladder. This was what the DNA double helix model looked like up-close.

It was unlike any other image that had been seen before.

Rosalind's heart soared.

God's Holy Darkness

By Sharei Green and Beckah Selnick · Illustrated by Nikki Faison

In God's Holy Darkness, Sharei Green and Beckah Selnick deconstruct anti-Blackness in Christian theology by celebrating instances in the story of God's people when darkness, blackness, and night are beautiful, good, and holy. From the darkness at the beginning of creation to the blackness of the sky on the day when Christ's birth was announced to the shepherds, children learn that blackness is something to celebrate as an important element of the life of faith. Lush and vibrant illustrations by artist Nicolette Peñaranda underscore the mystery and beauty of these wondrous acts of God's holy darkness.

Perfect for reading and anti-racist reflection in worship, as an affirmation and celebration with children, and at home with caregivers, God's Holy Darkness is a gift to cherish.

A picture book that combats anti-Blackness in Christianity by pointing out what is positive, good, and beautiful about darkness in the biblical story.

Sharei Green is pursuing a Masters of Divinity as a seminarian at the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago. Sharei has a strong commitment to community healing and sabbath, especially in BIPOC communities. You can find her writings online at Living Lutheran, Gather Magazine, and Café Magazine.

Beckah Selnick is a writer focusing on storytelling for digital formats. She is the host and creator of PK/PK Podcast. Beckah is living at the intersection of faith, funny, and feminism in Portland, Oregon.

Nikki Faison is a pastor in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America serving as the Program Director for African Descent Ministries. Nikki is the creator of MONadvocacy, a racial justice resource grounded in play. She is passionate about queer Black liberation, cultivating diverse leadership in faith spaces, and the art of creation. She resides in the Chicagoland area with her spouse, daughter, and two cats.

A poignant story about Priya's experience of celebrating Diwali for the first time since coming to the United States, where no one seems familiar with the holiday.

Diwali in My New Home

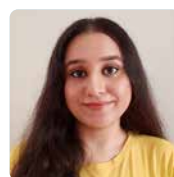

By Shachi Kaushik · Illustrated by Aishwarya Tandon

Priya loves being with family and friends to watch fireworks and celebrate Diwali. But this year Priya and her parents are living in the United States, and no one seems to know about the holiday. Priya misses the traditions in India. But as she strings lights outside and creates rangoli art, Priya introduces the festival of lights to her neighbors. And even though the celebration is different this year, it's still Diwali.

A heartwarming story of celebrating in a new place and sharing the Hindu festival of lights with those unfamiliar with the holiday.

Shachi Kaushik is a children's media enthusiast, writer, and storyteller. Part of the Children's Media Industry, she creates content for children that is entertaining, enlightening, and educational. Raised in India, Shachi currently lives in Vancouver with her husband.

Yuna's Cardboard Castles

By Marie Tang · Illustrated by Jieting Chen

Fold, fit, tuck . . .

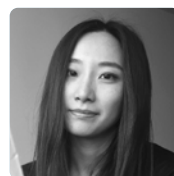

Yuna and her family have just moved to the United States, and she doesn't speak English yet. At first, her attempts to catch the attention of the neighborhood kids get lost in translation, but when she shows that she can do something very special with paper, a whole new world unfolds.

Marie Tang and Jieting Chen have brought Yuna's origami creations to life in this whimsical, magical picture book, where the language of play can bridge the language barrier and build new friendships. Back matter includes information about the origin of origami and instructions for kids to fold their own paper boat.

This imaginatively illustrated story demonstrates how art, along with courage and a little bit of playfulness, can be a powerful tool to communicate and connect in a new country where you don't speak the same language.

Marie Tang was born in Hong Kong, was raised in New York City, and has been a resident of Shanghai for over a decade. She proudly tells tales of the grit, tenacity, and compassion of the Asian people.

Jieting Chen is an illustrator, animator, and designer with years of experience. She has produced and directed several award-winning short animation projects. Her illustrations are strongly influenced by Oriental paintings.

Penguins Don't Wear Pink

Written and illustrated by Jeffrey Turner

Henry the penguin adores all things pink. Whether it's lemonade, a bicycle, or his favorite hat, Henry stays true to what he loves . . . until a schoolmate suggests that he looks ridiculous in his beloved pink hat. Peer pressure erodes his confidence, causing Henry to question himself. Although he wavers, Henry finds the strength to remain steadfast in embracing his love of pink regardless of what other penguins may say. He learns that everyone will have an opinion about his choices, but they can't control his self-expression. Ultimately, in learning to be true to himself, Henry finds friends who accept him for who he is.

The endearing story of pink-loving penguin Henry, who learns to be true to himself despite what other penguins may think or say about him.

Jeffrey Turner studied advertising design in college, working for thirty years as an art director and creative director in New York City. After leaving the world of advertising, Jeffrey worked in textiles, designing fabrics and craft magazines. But he felt something was missing and turned to children's books. As the parent of a neurodivergent son with special needs, Jeffrey sought and created ways for his son to thrive. He believes children's books should be a fun source of learning, insightful and entertaining.

Charly is on a mission to find a Halloween costume that represents both their feminine and masculine qualities in this affirming, inclusive picture book.

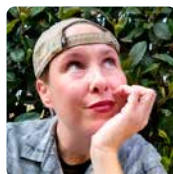

A Costume for Charly

By CK Malone-Nelson · Illustrated by Alejandra Barajas

Halloween has always been tricky for Charly, but this year they are determined to find a costume that represents their feminine and masculine identities equally. Digging through their costume box, Charly finds many fun costumes that could be for either girls or boys, but they all miss the mark. With trick-or-treat looming, they must think outside the box to find the perfect costume—a costume that will allow them to present as 100 percent Charly.

As the world recognizes and welcomes diverse and intersecting identities, children are the most in need of freedom to explore and learn how to build a better, more inclusive society. This delightful, affirming picture book delivers a message that is accessible, educational, positive, and inclusive.

CK Malone-Nelson is a bigender award-winning educator and literature coach at the secondary level. When not grading essays or helping students, they're busy helping design culturally and LGBTQIA+ responsive units for the district and working as a climate and culture coach. When they're not writing, they're coaching and advising through alignment with the Genders and Sexualities Alliance Network. CK continues this work in the literary world by advocating for all to be given the space to tell their own stories. Though they love the many hats they wear, their favorite is as an advocate for diverse voices.

Alejandra Barajas was born in Guanajuato, Mexico, in July 1984. At a very young age, her grandmother gave her a book by painter and illustrator Carl Larsson. This awakened her interest in art. She completed her degree in fine arts at Guanajuato University. Since then she has been working on individual and collective projects and illustrating magazines and children's books. She is a very calm person, who appreciates silence and loves contemplating the local landscape while playing with her dog.

A lighthearted, kid-friendly story about Mabel, who is adjusting to living in two different homes.

Mabel's Topsy-Turvy Homes

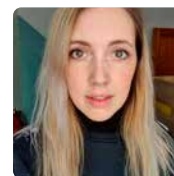

By Candy Wellins · Illustrated by Jess Rose

This is Mabel's house . . . and this is also Mabel's house.

New routines, rules, and bedrooms: after her parents' divorce, Mabel's new living situation has her feeling topsy-turvy. As she learns to adjust to having two different houses, she struggles to understand her anxiety and frustration. But a weekend caring for the class pet helps Mabel realize that having more than one home isn't such a bad thing after all. Mabel and Izzy the Iguana make a colorful duo in this lighthearted picture book, helping kids adapt to their own new, topsy-turvy adventures.

Candy Wellins is a former elementary school teacher and has a BA in journalism and a master's in literacy education. She's now a full-time mom to three wonderful children, who keep her up-to-date and immersed in children's literature. She is the author of Saturdays Are for Stella and The Stars Beckoned: Edward White's Amazing Walk in Space. She and her family make their home in Central Texas. When she's not reading, writing, or mothering, Candy loves running, traveling, and taking naps!

Jess Rose is an illustrator and designer living in Yorkshire, England. She has loved to draw her entire life, creating characters and helping tell stories that children can relate to. She has two children and uses her experience as a parent to inspire her work.

Teaches kids who are going through significant physical and emotional change that they are loved

Helpful and relatable picture book for families going through changes or transitions

Izzy the Iguana helps set this book apart from other picture books about divorce/different homes. She adds a colorful presence to the story through illustrations, on top of being a clever parallel story

Uses kid-centered storytelling, focusing on Mabel's experiences—it's a picture book about divorce, without actually being about divorce.

A humorous, child-friendly story about Simon, a huggable sloth, who learns about consent and respecting people's boundaries.

Simon the Hugger

By Stacy B. Davids · Illustrated by Ana Sebastián

Simon the sloth loves to hug. He hugs plants. He hugs rocks. He hugs his friends. He even hugs himself! So when his best friend, Elsa the jaguar, and others around him start saying no to his hugs, he is crushed. Why wouldn't someone want to be hugged? After being rejected several times, he learns that both he and his friends need to want a hug at the same time so they both feel comfortable.

This lighthearted story about a lovable, huggable sloth is a gentle introduction to the importance of receiving consent before offering physical affection to others, and respecting others' boundaries.

Stacy B. Davids, PhD, is a psychologist and a former special education teacher. Her highly praised picture book, Annie's Plaid Shirt, won Silver in the Foreword INDIES Book of the Year Awards. She lives in Florida and loves cats, cookies, and chocolate.

Ana Sebastián is a children's book illustrator based in Spain. She studied fine arts at the University of Zaragoza and Université Michel de Montaigne, Bordeaux, France. She also completed a master's degree in digital illustration.

Her work is focused on colors and light. Working mostly with her iPad Pro, she also likes using colored pencils, gouache, and watercolors.

Pause, Breathe, Be: A Kid's 30-Day Guide to Peace and Presence

By Megan Borgert-Spaniol and Lauren Kukla · Illustrated by Aruna Rangarajan

Living a mindful life can be easy—just take it one day at a time.

Building on the popular 30-day movement trends, Pause, Breathe, Be: A Kid's 30-Day Guide to Peace and Presence encourages kids to engage in mindfulness through interactive, fun, and easy methods. Daily mantras, exercises, quizzes, and activities help kids achieve a deeper understanding and connection to the world around them while building self-esteem and reducing anxiety. This middle-grade book is organized into three main 10-day sections, exploring oneself, one's environment, and one's relationships. Additional content sprinkled throughout these sections sparks further exploration and discovery, helping young readers incorporate calm, joy, and peace in their lives each day.

This engaging book invites middle-grade readers to incorporate mindfulness into their daily lives.

Megan Borgert-Spaniol is an author and editor living in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Lauren Kukla is an author and editor of books and media for kids. Her favorite kinds of books to write are the ones that make her think. She lives in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Aruna Rangarajan is an illustrator who lives with her family in Minneapolis. She loves drawing interesting things, such as mandalas for books about keeping your calm.

Little Prayers for Everyday Life

By Traci Smith · Illustrated by Anna Jones

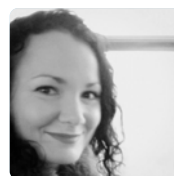

It's never too early to start to pray with your little one.

Childhood is full of all sorts of ordinary and extraordinary moments that pass us by, sometimes much too quickly. Little Prayers for Everyday Life turns these moments into opportunities for brief prayer together. The prayers are simple, but take the spirituality of young children seriously. These prayers are solid and sincere, worthy of memorization and adoption into any child's prayer life. Little Prayers for Everyday Life contains prayers for morning, mealtimes, bath time, and bedtime. It also includes prayers about the seasons, welcoming a baby, losing a tooth, birthdays, celebrations, times of upset and fear, and other ordinary situations and emotions a child experiences.

This fully illustrated book, born from Traci Smith's Prayers for Faithful Families, will become a well-loved keepsake for your little ones and the perfect gift for birthdays, baptisms, baby dedications, and baptism anniversaries.

Traci Smith is an ordained minister, mother of three, and author. Traci's passion is helping families find times for connection and spiritual nourishment amid the hustle and bustle of daily life. What began as a quest to help her own family has provided valuable insight for thousands of others. Traci believes faith practices should be fun, easy to fit into daily life, and accessible to all. Visit her at traci-smith.com.

Anna Jones has been illustrating children's books since 2010, and her work has been published in the UK, the US, The Netherlands, Korea, and South America. She lives in Edinburgh, Scotland.
